PRIVACY POLICY

Louis and Company does not collect personally identifying information from visitors to this site unless this information is directly provided by the visitor or through the visitor's browser. Louis and Company will not use information provided through your use of this site except to measure and analyze website traffic to louisandcompany.com, and except as described below. Information relating to use will not be provided or sold to third parties for their marketing purposes, but we do use third party software and services to assist us with analyzing information regarding use of this site.

We may also disclose your information to others for other purposes, particularly if required to do so by law. We may also ask you to provide personally identifiable information on the site, which may include your name, address, telephone number, fax number, company name, or e-mail address. This information can be gathered when you send us feedback or an e-mail, when you register for certain services or seminar registrations, when we set cookies, or when you respond to inquires on the site.

Currently we only employ a "cookie" (which is a file written to the visitor's computer that is used by some websites for record keeping or to remember certain information about visitors) for more accurate anonymous traffic analysis such as tracking the time/date of the visit, the page viewed and the referring website. This cookie does not include personal information such as name, age, phone number, e-mail address or mailing address. The data that we do collect is never stored in any individual profile and only serves to update aggregate counts allowing us to monitor site traffic. Most browsers are initially set up to accept cookies. If you would prefer, you can set your browser to reject cookies. Louis and Company reserves the right to change the aforementioned policy regarding cookies and the collection of information at any time, without advanced warning to users of our site. Should any new policy go into effect, Louis and Company will post it on this site, and the new policy will only apply to information collected thereafter. Visitors will be able to "opt out" of our collection of any personally identifying information under any such policy.
